

To receive services from the Maryland Developmental Disabilities Administration (DDA), individuals must meet eligibility requirements that includes having a disability which keeps them from handling their daily activities independently. Eligibility requirements for children are generally the same as those for adults. The DDA follows regulations requirements to make decisions related to eligibility