

Income is money that you get from working, or money that someone gives you, or checks that you get, like Social Security, unemployment or disability benefits, child support, retirement benefits, or sick pay. The amount of income you may have depends on the size of your family and the eligibility group for which you are applying.